

Franklin, who loves beer, went to Germany to complete his collection of beer mugs. In each city he visited, he bought one mug, and decided to only use that mug to a specific beer type. How big is the mug he bought in Dortmund?

- The mug for dark beer holds twice as much as the red mug.
- Exactly one of the beer types has the same initial as the city its mug was bought in.
- The white mug holds 50 cl or was bought in Dortmund.
- The mug for creamy beer is exactly one size larger than the mug from Essen.
- The black mug isn't meant for amber beer, and isn't from Aachen.
- The gray mug holds brown beer or is the biggest. However, it wasn't bought in Dortmund.
- The red mug is from Aachen or Dortmund. The black mug is smaller than the gray one.
- The mug from Berlin is exactly one size larger than the red mug.
- The mug for creamy beer doesn't hold 50 cl.
